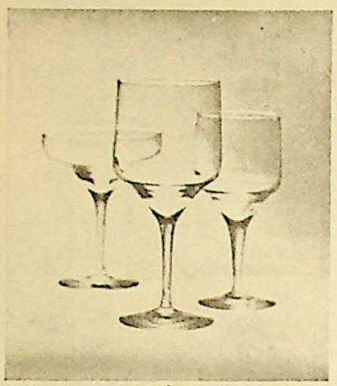
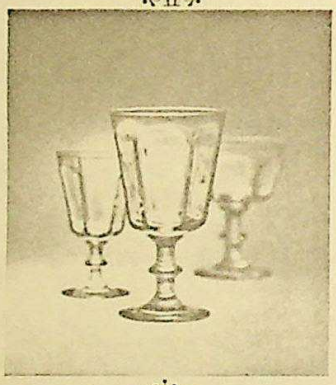
IT'S ELEGANT

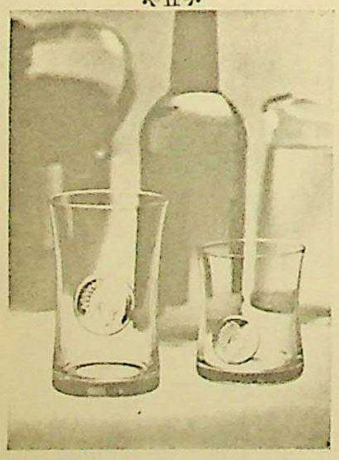
IT'S FINE LEAD CRYSTAL. IT'S BRYCE-OF COURSE



ADONIS No Bryce pattern has ever portrayed more gracefully classic lines than the popular new Adonis shown at the left. The sparkling upright bowls and tall, clean drawn stems flow together to create a feeling of regal beauty to compliment your finest table setting. Available in cocktail and iced-tea as well as the goblet, sherbet and wine glasses shown. Ask to see Adonis in better glassware departments.



ANTIQUE When your favorite eighteenth century ancestors dined elegantly, their crystal might well have closely resembled this beautiful Antique pattern by Bryce. Yet, so simple and forthright is the design, it is equally at home in modern or traditional settings. Shapes available are the goblet, sherbet and wine which appear at the left. Send 10¢ for literature describing this and other outstanding Bryce patterns.



INDIAN HEAD We doubt you will have seen anything so completely unusual as these sparkling bar glasses from the oldest house in America still hand-blowing and hand-cutting fine lead crystal. Each bears an amber glass seal (no two exactly alike) with the imprint of an Indian head pressed in. No attempt has been made to counterfeit old pennies, but if you rub your finger over the Indian's head before you take a drink, it will bring you good luck—we think. See these Amerindic classics at your favorite store or write for the name of your nearest dealer. 13-ounce highball, 10-ounce old-fashioned about $2.00 each.

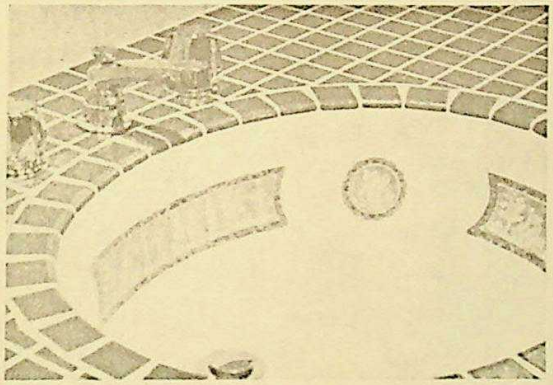
Bowls come in white or color. This fleur-de-lis pattern, which Universal-Rundle is offering on their new oval bowls, comes in gold on white or on beige, or white fleur-de-lis on a blue basin. Oval is 15" by 19".

Lavatories with a luxury look

Many styles and patterns of decorated bowls are now available as stock items from plumbing-fixture suppliers. All are designed to bring back yesterday's lush elegance



This blue-on-white "Grecian" motif is one of four new bowl designs by Crane. Other designs include one of roses, one of garlands, and one that is Early American in its styling. The colors match the standard Crane fixture colors.

Lenox Buys Fostoria's Navarre

Hand-Blown Stem to Return To Retailers' Shelves Feb. 1

LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J. — Lenox crystal has purchased the exclusive rights to the design, name and mold of the Navarre stemware pattern previously manufactured by Fostoria Glass, West Virginia.

The purchase price was not disclosed.

Navarre, which had been Fostoria's most successful hand-blown pattern, was estimated to account for approximately 9 percent of the bridal stemware business. Fostoria stopped making the lightly etched pattern in May when it discontinued hand-made production in favor of machine-made stems.

SAFFORD SWEATT, vice president of marketing for Lenox's china and crystal division, said he expects the new pattern to make a successful addition to the firm's product offerings, even though Lenox already has several lightly etched stems on the market. "If you look at the market as it ex-to Navarre and the Lenox patterns. "So the fact that they existed in the market place suggests that there's a viable reason for them to co-exist."

Lenox is moving quickly and aggressively with marketing and production plans for the addition to their stemware line. The company expects to offer the pattern to retailers by Jan. 1 with a shipment date of Feb. 1.

The company will also be promoting the new pattern extensively to make consumers aware that it is available. According to Robert Sullivan, Lenox vice president for advertising, "We will be providing stores with slicks and mats announcing the Navarre line. In addition we will include it in our January pattern book and in the 15-million-run spring retail insert."

While most industry sources note that the acquisition of Navarre will secure Lenox's already

Anchor Discloses Added Stake in Towle

NEW YORK — Anchor Hocking Corp. revealed last week that its stake in Towle Manufacturing Co. was larger than the shares bought in last month's deal, and that the firm will increase its holdings further still.

In an SEC filing, Anchor said it has 800,700 shares of Towle. Anchor had purchased 50,700 shares on the open market prior to the 750,000 share acquisition announced by the two companies in November.

The glass manufacturing conglomerate now owns 16.6 percent of Towle, making it the single largest investor in the tabletop company.

IN THE SAME filing, Anchor disclosed plans to increase it's holdings to 20 percent, and said it would consider the possibility of a merger.

"If the association of the two companies proves beneficial, Anchor may be interested in exploring the possibility of a merger of similar consolidation with Towle, but it has no present plans or proposals in that regard," Anchor said.

Anchor's agreement last month to buy 750,000 newly issued shares of Towle for 16.9 million caused considerable speculation that a takeover bid was forthcoming. The price of Towle stock has continued to increase since then as is common when an acquisition is suspected.

Common shares closed at 29⅛ on Thursday, rising almost 3 percentage points above the previous all time high a week earlier.

The two companies insisted to HFD that the deal is strictly an investment.

"WE'RE LOOKING at it as an investment," said J. Ray Topper, Anchor Hocking president. "It has no overtones or undertones beyond what it is."

Towle chairman, Leonard Florence, also called the deal an investment, explaining that the SEC filing was procedural. "They have to say what they're investing their money in."

Perk Thornton, the senior research analyst who covers Anchor for the First Boston Corporation, believed a takeover was possible and added that a merger could be potentially advantageous [illegible] Anchor Hocking.

When you see things like [illegible] the first thing that pops up is 'takeover.' I think the potential exists," he said. Although Thornton saw a 50-50 chance of merger he added, "When you think about it, there is a distribution fit and product fit between the two companies." An acquisition of Towle, he said, could strengthen the household products division which generated almost half of the company's $70.5 million operating profit in 1981.

Thornton also noted that Anchor's past acquisitions have typically been companies "with a leading market share."

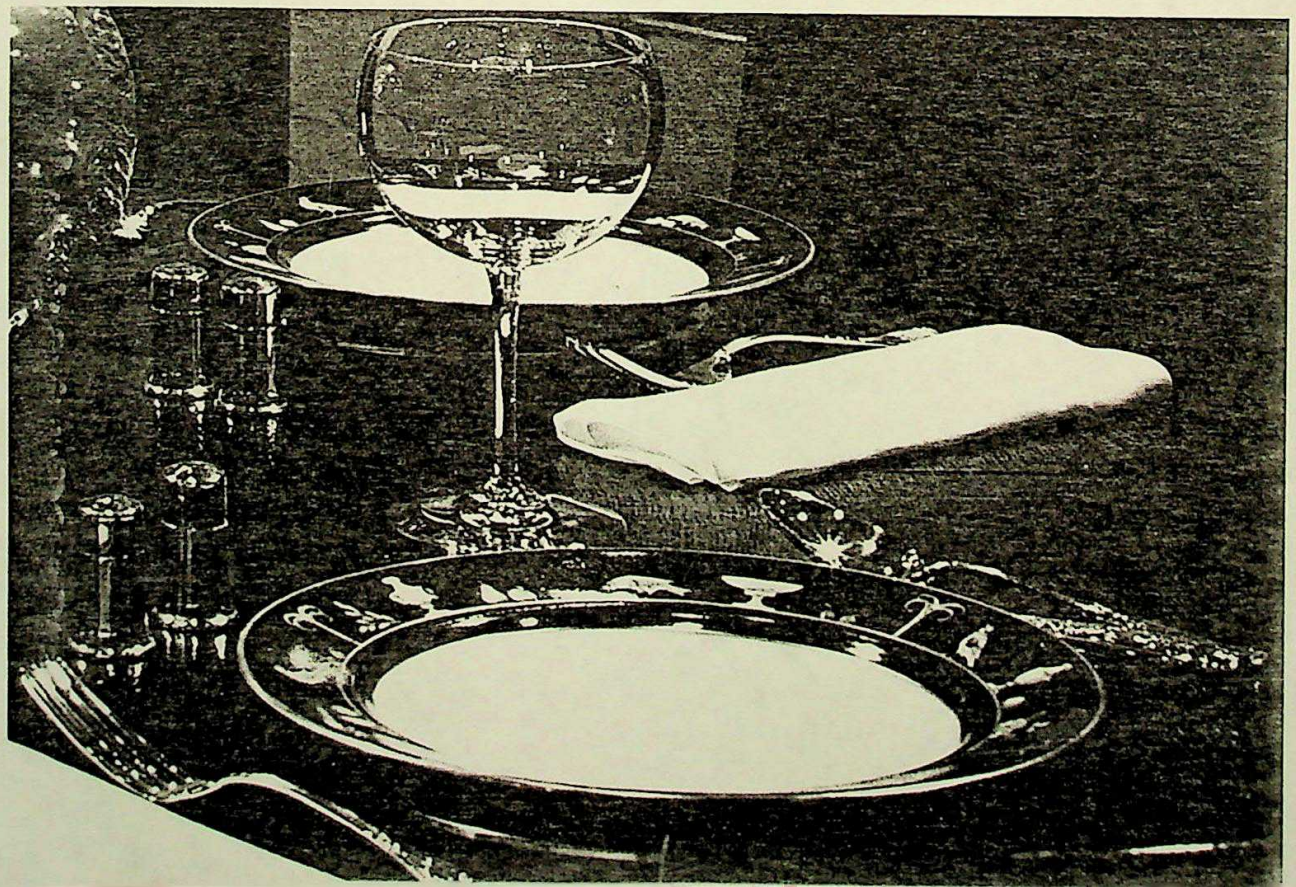
P. 160 THE NEW TIFFANY TABLE SETTINGS BY LORING & PLATT

SUPPER WITH ARTHUR SMITH

Arthur Smith

Among the most significant design discoveries of the late seventies and beginning of the eighties are the works of Jean-Michel Frank and Émile Jacques Ruhlmann, Eileen Gray and Suë et Mare, of Décorchemont, René Lalique, and Jean Dunand, the masters of 1920s French Art Deco.

Young New York designer Arthur Smith has been a leader in the revival of these great artist/craftsmen.

With a strikingly spare and luxurious setting of "Black Shoulder" porcelain, "Audubon" vermeil, and "All-Purpose" wineglasses based on a pedestal table of his own invention, he uses a splendid set of Jean-Michel Frank dining room chairs and a masterful screen by Eileen Gray constructed of irregular cork-covered panels.


Constantin Brancusi's brass sculpture "Sleeping Muse" acts as a centerpiece.
